Background

In 2000, Millennium Development goals (MDGs) were set by the United Nations. The Declaration of MDGs was endorsed and adopted by 189 countries. In order to make people's life better, the eight Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) were built an agreement that all countries will take necessary actions to reduce poverty and hunger, to tackle ill-health, gender inequality, lack of education, lack of access to clean water and environmental degradation. After 15 years later, it is shown that world has significantly achieved targeted goals of MDGs. Like other countries, it is found that Bangladesh has met several targets of the MDGs like poverty reduction, attaining gender parity at primary and secondary education, under-five mortality rate reduction, containing HIV infection with access to antiretroviral drugs, children under five sleeping under insecticide treated bed nets, detection and cure rate of tuberculosis under directly observed treatment short course and others. But different reports shows that still Bangladesh faces major challenges of creating jobs, preserving ecology and ensuring nutrition in terms of achieving the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs). It indicates Bangladesh still far from achieving goals of employment, nutrition, and environment.

But again, building on the successes of the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs), the Goals has been considered and included new areas such as economic inequality, innovation, climate change, sustainable consumption, peace and justice, among others. Now, across the world leaders are getting ready to adopt the new Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) which are essentially an agreed vision to put people and planet on a sustainable path by 2030. On 25 September 2015, the 193 countries of the UN General Assembly adopted the 2030 Development Agenda titled “Transforming our world: the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development”. These new 17 SDGs, also known as Global Goals, comprise of 169 targets and will guide policy and funding for the next 15 years. These targeted SDGs are universal, inclusive and a bold commitment to people and planet.

After setting out SDGS, the Asia-Europe Environment Forum (ENVforum), alongside the Permanent Missions of Hungary and Vietnam to the United Nations organized a briefing to discuss “How can Countries Implement and Monitor Sustainable Development Goals?” This briefing was held on 20 July 2015 as an official side-event for the intergovernmental negotiations on the post-2015 development agenda in the United Nations Headquarters in New York. This kind of initiatives provided a platform to share national perspectives on plausible follow-up and review frameworks based on individual country experiences along with national readiness for SDGs’ implementation.

Considering the above mentioned fact and perspective it is an important role for the Government of Bangladesh, National and International Organizations, Private Sectors and Civil Society to review and monitor the progress of SDGs routine wise. Based on this aspect Global Citizen’s Forum for Sustainable Development (GCFSD) is going to organize an event titled “BD Summit on Sustainable Development 2016” in order to reach out implementation and monitoring strategies for the Sustainable Development Goals.

Objectives

- To set recommendations for the monitoring tools for the progress of sustainable development.
- To define plan of action for sharing knowledge, best practices and exchange technology at national, regional and global level.
- To develop framework for multi-sectoral and multi-stakeholders engagement at planning process, implementation system to ensure using the cost effective environmental solutions and avoiding duplication.
- To advocate for policy changing by citizen participation including marginalize, under privilege, indigenous and disable people
- To make a linkage between community people, civil society, academia, media and journalists for mainstreaming the targets and ensure the success of upcoming sustainable development goals.
- To develop partnership between local, regional and global civil societies, government and private sectors for equity basis resource mobilization, institution development.
